

Ang Pilipino Day
Pinali?

English is a universal language. In early stages of education such as kindergarten, if not nursery, our subjects are mostly taught in English. We are very capable of understanding and speaking it. Even our carabao English gets across any place we go!

Added to that is our resiliency. Most Filipinos are farmers and hunters; with statistics showing that even retirees prefer to work even after 60. Hardwork is an inherited trait that has been passed on to us by our ancestors and it also includes a strong mind set to survive in any conditions.

A cartoon illustration set in a stormy, dark landscape. In the foreground, a large, grey cow with a white face and a red collar is looking towards the right. To the right, a boy with a wide smile, wearing a white shirt, blue shorts, and a striped hat, is holding a wooden stick. In the background, there are several small, colorful houses (red, yellow, and blue) that appear to be tilted or damaged. A yellow cow is flying through the air in the upper right. The sky is filled with dark, swirling clouds and lightning bolts.

Remember our greatest typhoons and earthquakes?
Those were not enough to rid us of our smiles.

Although our country is falling short when it comes to technological advancement, **we are ranked third on who can easily adapt to innovation and globalization. Be it harsh climates, or fast-paced technology — it does not hold us back. We do not give up easily, in fact, more than half of the Filipino workforce have shown optimism about their future. It makes us all the more adaptable and passionate about the things we do!

**footnote: based from a survey conducted by New World of Work Index survey in 2015

Our practicality makes us creative. We are able to create something out of leftovers, which we call 'pinoy upcycling'.

Here's a fun fact: Did you know that Philippine jeepney was built out of G.I. Jeeps that Americans brought in the 1940s?

Aside from that, 82% of working Filipinos are said to embrace practices that are sustainable. We can see how our overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) thrived in places they go. We could be anywhere, and still be awesome!

We are very welcoming and polite. We, being hospitable and always showing those smiling faces, makes people feel comfortable with us. This makes us easy to talk to and others seem to enjoy that very much!

Welcome to my house! Please, feel at home.

Thank you!

Our strongest point is our willingness to learn and adapt. Our ancestors embraced Christianity because of our openness. We are so open to other cultures that we have adapted to various cultures: from food to fashion or TV shows to music—you name it!

Our Bayanihan spirit also makes it easy for us to lend a helping hand. Do you know that Filipino employees are known to be highly responsive in helping? It is a character that is highly needed in the ministry, and we have it!

The Philippines is now becoming a country with a growing network of Christians. We have over 70,000 Bible believing churches with more than 11,500,000 believers—and we are continually growing.

70,000
BIBLE BELIEVING CHURCHES

Not only do Filipinos have global access: but we are also ready! It is by no accident that the Lord put up churches all over the nation. The Philippines is also strategically located with easy access to its neighboring countries.

We're ready!
Let's go!

We are passionate and naturally equipped by God to serve cross-culturally. If our nature has been blessed greatly to such extent, we, Filipinos are not meant for nothing; we are meant for something bigger. This is a gift we shouldn't waste!

And we are NOT alone in this!

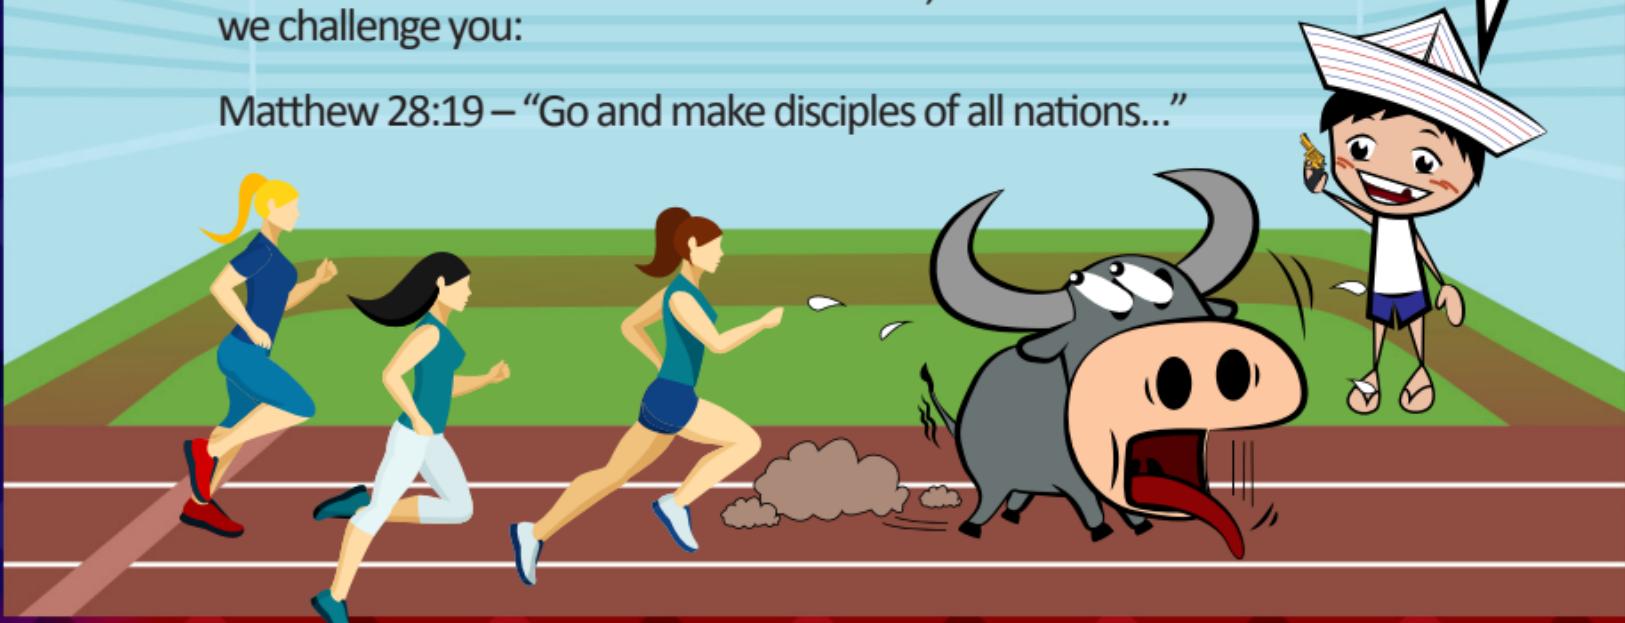

Noooo!
Not that weapon!!!

We are called for a purpose and we want to walk alongside with you towards that purpose. With the Great Commission, commanded by the Great Commissioner -- our LORD and Saviour Jesus Christ Himself, we challenge you:

Matthew 28:19 – “Go and make disciples of all nations...”

Go!

We all have a place in the discipling of all nations. And we are here to help you start. We want to walk alongside with you in this journey. Connect with us and see how your passion, skill and profession can be used for the Kingdom of God, empowered by the Holy Spirit, to the praise of His glory.

ABLAZE MEDIA PRODUCTIONS

MOBILIZING THROUGH MEDIA

Ablaze Media Productions

projectablaze2016@gmail.com